11:30 – 12:30 Cross Connection Control From Source to Tap

Maine's Strategy for Cross Connection Control introduces technical professionals to what cross connections are, why we should be concerned and examples of how to protect water systems from cross connections, and which State agencies and rules are involved with protecting the public from cross connection hazards. This topic is often considered an extra concern on top of many others and is not given the attention it requires; every year cross connections in the U.S. cause illness and sometimes death. As professionals, we are all responsible for protecting public health. We encourage you to attend this session and learn your role in cross connection control.

Presenters: Nate Saunders, Maine Drinking Water Program and Dana Tuttle, Senior State Plumbing Inspector

1:00 – 2:00 PHCC CARE Health Plans
